NOUGAT

Typically, when working with wood, the focus is on accurate pre-planning and precise material selection. As the motto goes, 'measure twice, cut once.' But for the Nougat stool, Studio Bovti turned this idea around. Instead, they asked themselves during the development process how they could trust in the beauty of materials through pure chance. By consciously relinquishing control, Studio Bovti developed a mass from a colorful variety of woods with a unique resin mixture. We have already found ourselves wanting to bite into it instead of sitting on it. It is precisely this game that encourages us to take a closer look, take our time and be in the moment.
